PRESIDENT'S VETO CERTAIN TO KILL SOLDIER BONUS

House to Override Action and Again Pass Measure;
Senate Will Not

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—President Harding this afternoon vetoed the soldiers' bonus bill and returned it to congress with a message explaining why the bill is unacceptable to him.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
For International News Service.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Although the White House maintained strict silence today as to President Harding's action on the soldier bonus bill, the expectation prevailed in congressional circles that a veto message would be forthcoming before tonight.

The president's message is said to be virtually complete. It is described by those who had a hand in its framing as being a "vigorous document" reviewing the history of the bonus and calling attention to the fact that in rejecting the measure the chief executive is only carrying out the policy he outlined months ago of refusing to accept any legislation that did not carry with it the means of providing the money to meet the cost of the bonus.

A careful poll of the existing situation in house and senate by the International News Service indicated today that the house will override the veto and re-pass the bill, but that the senate will sustain the veto—thus effectually killing the measure so far as the sixty-seventh congress is concerned.

SCOUTS TO HEAR OF EXPERIENCES

Visited State Fair Meet;
Older Boys' Work to Be Explained

The Boy Scouts of the Verdugo Hills district council are to have an opportunity to hear of the work accomplished at the Older Scout conference at the Sacramento state fair, from September 1 to 2. Four boys from this district attended.

They will start tonight to call on all troops in this district, where they will relate their experiences at the conference, and go over the older boys' work.

Eagle Scout Clifford Wolcott will tell of the exhibits and demonstrations. Eagle Scout Dallas Kalbaugh will tell of the opening banquet and the activities of a deaf and dumb troop at Berkeley. Merit Badge Scout Robert Eastman will tell of the conferences and how they were conducted. First Class Scout Kenneth Hellyer will tell of the trip up and back which was made by auto, the inspection at Fort Sutter, and the big special church services which the scouts attended.

At Eagle Rock tonight, Troop No. 1, Eagle Scout, is to be the troop visited tonight. Others are: Troop No. 1, of Tujunga, Thursday; Troop No. 2 of Glendale, Friday; Troop No. 3 of Glendale, Friday September 29; Troop Nos 1 and 2 of Burbank, Friday, October 6.

The work of the older boys' organizations in other scouting centers is of vital interest to those interested in the work here," said H. F. Benner, scout executive of this district. "It is probable that an organization of some kind will be formed in the near future in this district so that it will never be necessary for a boy to leave scouting because of the fact that he is over eighteen years."

Other cities have handled the older boy problem in scouting in many ways, according to Benner. The usual way is to have a loyal scout become an assistant scoutmaster of some troop when he becomes 18 and when he is 21 he becomes scoutmaster of a troop of his own.

"By this method there is really no reason why a boy should ever leave scouting," he said, "but we are also trying to find other ways."

John Mathis Leaves to Visit Tennessee

John Mathis of 727 South Maryland avenue expects to leave this evening on the Southern Pacific for Memphis on a business trip of several weeks. Mr. Mathis is the owner of extensive cotton interests in Tennessee, and makes a trip back each year in time to dispose of the cotton crop. Mrs. Mathis, owing to ill health, will not accompany him east this time as has been her custom heretofore.

C. C. COOPER TO LEAVE
C. C. Cooper of 302 North Central avenue is leaving this afternoon by boat for San Francisco and from there he will go to Omaha and other Nebraska points on a thirty-day business trip. Mr. Cooper and family recently returned from Hawaii.

Glendale's Great Growth Seen by Postal Officials

Who needs a mail box?
No, these are not mail boxes for the home, but new ones that are intended for the city of Glendale to be placed at street corners, in front of business buildings, etc.

Don't all crowd at once. Lines form to the right. There are plenty of them to go around.

Anticipating the rapid growth of Glendale, D. Ripley Jackson, Glendale's postmaster put in a requisition for new mail boxes for the city.

Word has just been received from the railroad that forty of them passed through Chicago on September 13, and they are expected to arrive in the city within a short time.

Among the forty boxes are all the various sizes and shapes that are made for Uncle Sam's postal service, according to Mr. Jackson. Some will be for parcel post, some for letters, and some for both.

DELAY IN BRINGING BODIES OF MINERS TO SURFACE; ALL VICTIMS NOW FOUND, REPORT

Several Not Accounted for Until Late Today,
Says Statement to State Industrial Board;
Notes Tell of Tragic Battle Against Gas

BULLETIN
JACKSON, Sept. 19.—Fred Towell, of the industrial accident commission, declared this afternoon that all forty-seven bodies had been accounted for in denying a report to the offices of the commission in San Francisco that only forty-two or forty-three had been found.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—A report to the state industrial accident commission from one of their representatives in Jackson today indicated that possibly not all of the forty-seven miners entombed in the Argonaut mine have been accounted for.

The report, according to the commission, said that only forty-two or forty-three had actually been found instead of the entire forty-seven as officially announced at the mine. The report said identification in most cases is problematical.

JACKSON, Sept. 19.—Two or three days may elapse before the last of the forty-seven bodies of the victims of the Argonaut disaster are brought to the surface from the 4350 foot level of the gold mine in which they were found huddled last night after three weeks of frantic effort to reach them.

B. O. Pickard, head of the United States bureau of mines crew, and leader of the exploration party that found the bodies, stated that the first of the bodies would hardly reach the surface until late today.

The condition of the bodies and the difficulty in transporting them from the spot they were found to the Kennedy shaft through which they will be brought to the surface is the cause of the delay.

Mrs. Lola Potter, Amador county coroner, will hold an inquest as soon as the last of the bodies reach the surface. The mine rescue workers are finding the recovery work most difficult according to Pickard.

Only a snail's pace is possible in dragging the wire stretcher basket through the narrow passage ways. The men are still working with apparatus but the air conditions now are fairly good except at the spot where the bodies are lying.

Hoists which will assist in handling the bodies are being placed at the most convenient points. Additional coffins were expected today from San Francisco, only twenty-six having been previously provided—showing Jackson's hopes to the last minute that at least some of her sons would be found alive.

Delayed work was reported to have delayed the work of sucking the bodies and the possibility existed that all might not be brought to the surface until tonight. It was reported that some officials favored holding all of the bodies underground until they could be brought up tonight.

Definite burial plans have not been announced although it is understood the interment will be handled by the mining company under the jurisdiction of the state health authorities.

Probe of Tragedy
The possibility of both state and federal investigations of the disaster loomed today with the receipt by B. O. Pickard, head of the United States bureau of mines rescue crew, of a telegram from Dr. H. Foster Bain, director of the United States bureau of mines, in which he declared the safety codes prescribed by the laws of many states are inadequate. Clarence Jarvis, representing Governor W. D. Stephens, had already announced there would be a thorough probe by the state following (Continued on Page 2)

LOTS OF CROWING AT ELK MEETING

One Black Rooster Causes
Excitement; Most Popular
Member Remembered

One Black Minorca rooster last night almost caused the stampede of a herd of Elks.

Prizes won by officers of the Elks at Sunday's picnic in Verdugo Park were distributed at last night's session of the lodge.

John Egan, who won the race for past excellent, received a box which he was invited to open at once. He tried to pull off the string and the side of the box, which had been carefully prepared, flew open and a pert four-month-old Black Minorca rooster hopped out and began to strut around.

A great deal of laughter and confusion followed. After the bird had been caught and crammed into the box again, it was found that he had come from 117 West Broadway, the Poultry & Pet Stock Exchange.

Lawyer Handed One
With a broad smile, Attorney Albert Pierce of 119 West Lexington Drive "pranced" up to the front of the room to receive the prize as the most popular Elk in Glendale. An immense box was presented to him. This was carefully wrapped up and tied with many knots. As quickly as possible he had the outer wrapping off. Opening the box, he found two smaller packages inside. Each of these was well wrapped, too. Well, what with breaking string and tearing off paper of ten duplicate boxes, Mr. Pierce finally got down to the last box. With great anticipation he tore off the covering and uncovered a lemon. As a consolation prize, however, the outfit contained a box of candy for Mrs. Pierce.

Attorney James McBratney of 111 East Broadway, exalted ruler, received a pair of slippers for his exertion in winning the officers' race.

Mrs. Lillian Howes
Thanks The News

Mrs. Lillian Howes of 1112 E. Elk avenue, who was announced yesterday as winner of the first prize in The Glendale Evening News' "Test Your Wits" contest, took occasion today to thank The News and also the Walker Jewelry company of 116 East Broadway, which offered the first prize, an $11.50 wrist watch, which she was fortunate in winning.

Frank Lewis of 317 Hawthorne street, returned from Arizona in time to enter the Pacific avenue school for the coming term. Frank, who is 9 years of age, was very much envied by his playmates when he left in May to spend three months as the guest of his aunt, whose home is on a cattle ranch near Globe, Ariz. He returned looking the picture of health and is happily regaling his friends with thrilling tales of gila monsters, diamond back rattlers, horseback riding, and to add variety to the list, he had the whooping cough and was vaccinated, owing to an epidemic of smallpox appearing in the locality. He is firm in his opinion that Arizona is the only place to live and be happy. He is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Baxter Lewis.

HOSTS AT DINNER PARTY IN GARDEN

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Mitchell
Entertain at Delightful
Outdoor Affair

Mr. and Mrs. H. Loren Mitchell were hosts last night at an all fresco dinner served in the garden of their home at 1241 South Boynton street, where they entertained Mr. Mitchell's associates in the physical education department of the Los Angeles city schools.

The Mitchell garden with its rustic arrangement offers an ideal setting for outdoor affairs and it was particularly enjoyable last night because of the real summer weather prevailing.

Dinner was served at 6 o'clock on a large rustic eucalyptus table and music was enjoyed afterwards.

Mr. Mitchell is supervisor of physical education in the Los Angeles city schools and he and Mrs. Mitchell had as guests, C. L. Glenn, director of physical education in the city schools, Mrs. Glenn and baby Joan, and the following assistant physical education directors, Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Thomas of Hollywood, Miss Martha Bell of South Pasadena, Mrs. L. B. Foster of Edendale and Misses Marguerite Seaver, Marion Sweetser and Hazel M. Gross of Los Angeles.

Merchants Tell Home State In

Do you know from where your favorite merchant has come?

In tonight's issue of The Glendale Evening News a dozen business men have banded together on a whole page to tell you the "old home" they left to come to Glendale and serve you.

It is expected that many acquaintances will be made by these advertisements. Of course, that is their purpose, but at the same time you will find it a pleasure to talk over old times with someone who knows old St. Joe, Pawtucket, Kalamazoo or Snohomish.

So turn to the advertisement where you see Old Man World in a merry whirl and find out who comes from your state back east!

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 19.—Drafting of platforms for the forthcoming campaign will be the principal order of business of the four political party conventions which will convene in the state capital here this afternoon.

MORE DEAD IN FIGHTING BETWEEN IRISH FORCES
BELFAST, Sept. 19.—Ten irregulars and six free state troops were killed in battle near Erris, county Mayo, early today. The fight raged for hours in the hills with the combatants fighting from behind rocks and trees, Indian fashion.

BRITISH CABINET DECIDES ON TURK WAR POLICY
LONDON, Sept. 19.—The British cabinet today decided not to declare war against Turkey unless the Turkish nationalist army, under Mustapha Kemal Pasha, invades the "neutral zone" along the Turkish straits—the frontier of Europe and Asia. There was a revision of policy and a concession to Britain's European allies.

POINCARÉ'S DECISION IS APPROVED BY CABINET
PARIS, Sept. 19.—The French cabinet today approved Premier Poincaré's decision not to go to war in the near east support Great Britain if that nation declares war on Turkey. The cabinet confirmed M. Poincaré's instructions to French representatives in allied capitals that France's policy is one of peace in the near east.

U. S. WILL TAKE NO PART IN EUROPEAN TROUBLES
WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The United States government does not intend to get into another European war and will take no part in the difficulties in the near east growing out of the war between the Greeks and Turks, it was announced officially at the White House this afternoon. American battleships, it was stated, would not be employed for the protection of Constantinople in the event of further Turkish advances.

JAKE STAHL, FORMER BIG LEAGUER, PASSES AWAY
MONROVIA, Cal., Sept. 19.—Jake Stahl, former big league baseball player, died at the Pottinger sanitarium here at midnight last night, following an attack of lung trouble from which he had suffered for some time. Stahl came to Monrovia for his health last April from Chicago and despite medical aid failed to regain his health. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

FURTHER DELAY IN RESUMPTION OF FORD PLANTS
DETROIT, Sept. 19.—Resumption of operations in the Ford factories will be impossible until the interstate commerce commission's priority order No. 23 is revoked and a steady supply of coal to the plants is in prospect. E. J. Liebold, secretary to Henry Ford told a committee of the board of commerce today. Priority orders places railways, other public utilities and essential industries ahead of the motor plants in the rationing of coal.

URGE HARDING SEEK TO SETTLE NEAR EAST STRIFE
WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Mediation by President Harding in the near east conflict was proposed today by Representative Myer London, Socialist, New York, in a resolution introduced in the house. The resolution provides that: "The president of the United States be and he is hereby requested to offer to mediate between the powers now contending in the near east and in the Balkans."

GOOD INCREASES SHOWN IN IMPORTS AND EXPORTS
WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—American imports and exports during the month of August showed substantial increases over the figures for July, the commerce department announced today. August imports, totalling $271,000,000 were the highest recorded in any month of this year and exceeded the July figures by $21,000,000. Exports totalled $302,000,000, an excess of $688,000 over the July shipments.

CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR ENGAGED IN FISTIC BATTLE
ATLANTA, Sept. 19.—Walter A. Sims, candidate for mayor of Atlanta in the run-off primary to be held tomorrow, and Dr. R. F. Ingraham, whom Sims has accused in a public speech of having been convicted of violating liquor laws, fought a fistic encounter today in the lobby of a bank at the city's most prominent street corner. The combatants were separated before either had caused any damage.

TARIFF BILL IS DUE TO PASS CONGRESS TODAY
WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The new Republican tariff bill came to the end of its long legislative journey through congress today with the senate ready to vote at 4 o'clock this afternoon on its final enactment. Under a unanimous consent agreement, the senate votes at that hour on the measure as revised in conference and its passage is assured. The bill then goes to the White House to become a law by the president's signature.

GERMANY AND RUSSIA ARE PLEDGED TO AID TURKS
WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Both Germany and Russia are pledged to go to the aid of Turkey in case Great Britain or any other power takes up arms on behalf of Greece, according to an official statement put out by the Greek legation here today. The statement alleges that a secret treaty of alliance exists between Turkey, Russia and Germany, which was negotiated after the signing of the now famous Rapallo treaty between Germany and Russia at the time of the Genoa conference.

NEW EFFORT TO BE MADE TO FREE MAYBELLE ROE
LOS ANGELES, Sept. 19.—Another effort will be made to secure the release of Mrs. Maybelle Roe from the county jail on bail, following the announcement that the state supreme court reversed the judgment of the lower court sentencing her to life imprisonment on the charge of murdering McCullough Graydon at Venice, September 1, 1920, it became known today. The state high court sustained the decision of the district court of appeals from which decision the state took an appeal to the supreme court. The supreme court also held that Mrs. Roe is entitled to a new trial because of conflicting testimony she herself gave.

EIGHT BIG FOREST FIRES THROUGHOUT CALIFORNIA
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—Eight big forest fires were being fought today in various sections of California, according to reports to the forest service of the United States department of agriculture. More than 50,000 acres have already been burned over. Reports indicated the large force of fire fighters engaged in battling the flames would control at least some of the fires before the day is over. A big fire in the Shasta national forest, Trinity county, has burned over 8000 acres. Another big fire in the California forest near Aldrich Springs had swept over nearly 25,000 acres. One near the boundary of the Sierra national forest, south of North Fork, has burned over 20,000 acres. Five fires are burning in the Santa Barbara national forest, three of them having started yesterday. The total acreage affected there had not yet been reported.

BATTLE TO LAST WITH DEATH GAS

Miners Put Up Brave Fight, but Die Soon After the Fire Breaks Out

The completion of the rescue work. All the dead were found behind two bulkheads which the entombed men had constructed in a vain effort to save themselves. The bodies were so decomposed as to make identification difficult.

All Die Quickly
Not one of the forty-seven men had remained alive after the fire broke out in the Argonaut shaft at midnight on August 27. They were driven from passage to passage by the deadly fumes of gas and finally made a last stand on the 4350 foot level of the Argonaut behind two makeshift bulkheads. And there, one by one, they gasped their last breath and died for lack of air.

Today the mining town of Jackson mourned its dead. In the relaxation of the grief that followed the twenty-two days of struggle to break into the Argonaut from the Kennedy mine, the knowledge that the effort was vain, that all of the men were already dead hours before the first shovelful of earth was removed, has been a bitter come with an irony too bitter to be borne.

Find Two Notes
The men were alive, but dying, at 3 o'clock on the morning of August 28. By 4 o'clock they were in the embrace of death, huddled bodies lying still.

This fact was established by two notes, one from William Fessel, miner and chemist and father of a family, who perished; and the other from an unknown man. Fessel's note was buried deep into the wood on the inner-most of the two bulkheads which the men frantically had constructed to keep out the gas. He had used the flame of his tiny miner's carbide lamp and had sealed the wood with this message:

"Three a. m. Gas very bad. We are going to leave you. William Fessel."

A second note, a penciled scrawl was picked up on the wet floor of the drift. It read: "Three o'clock, too much gas." Below was a rudely scrawled figure "4." It appeared as if the writer had endeavored to write a message at 4 o'clock, but the gas had already overpowered the men and they were falling into the sleep which was to be their last.

They Die Fighting
The fact that the men died fighting poison gas caused by the burning of the mine shaft and in doing so stripped their bodies of clothes to stuff in the cracks of the first bulkhead they constructed, added to the difficulty in identifying the men. The brass tags handed out to each workman as he goes on shift were in this way discarded to a great extent and three of the men went on duty that fatal night three weeks ago minus their tags.

The rescue workers are sticking grimly to their task and will do their best to make identification absolute.

Jackson has but one consolation today—their sons died as heroes. They died fighting. They had leadership and lived up to the best traditions of their calling. The manner in which their nearly nude bodies were found arranged in the cross-cut of the 4350 foot level beneath the bulkheads of the first bulkhead they constructed, and they died quietly. Experts knowing the manner in which the monoxide gas works express belief that the end was easy and quick once the gas reached them.

Attempts Suicide
One woman, a relative of one of the entombed miners, to whom news of their fate was too much, attempted suicide by poisoning. Prompt action by friends in securing a physician probably will save her life.

Compensation insurance will probably reach the widows and the heirs of the miners tomorrow. It will be the first installment representing a proportion of their earnings during the three weeks their fate was unknown—about $25 per man. Later the state industrial accident commission will award death compensation.

BETTER QUARTERS TO BE OBTAINED

Jewelry Store and Optical Offices Soon to Have Increased Efficiency

Completion of work remodeling the building at 106 East Broadway will give the R. L. Cole Jewelry store and the Dr. C. L. Marlene optical offices new and modernly-equipped quarters for receiving and serving their Glendale patrons.

An entirely new window is being installed in the Cole Jewelry store. The outside will be trimmed in gray and the inside finished in walnut, which is so effective for jewelry display purposes. In the interior new wall cases with mirror sections, gray finished show cases, redecorated walls and new linoleum will be installed.

With the completion of the work Mr. Cole plans to secure a more extensive line of jewelry, silverware, cut glass and china. One of the features of the rearrangement is a modernly furnished rest room for women.

Dr. Marlene's office has also been remodeled and to adequately take care of his increasing business he has added a new grinding machine.

COMMENT THAT'S ALL

News Direct From Source
Work Money Can't Buy
Salvationist Rescuers
Birth Rate and Schools

By Gil A. Cowan

ALL day yesterday while countless thousands the world over looked and hoped and prayed for news from the Argonaut mine at Jackson, the International News Service leased wire, which clicks away in the Glendale Evening News office, had direct connections with the crew of newspapermen at the mouth of the mine until 6:30 o'clock in the evening at heavy cost to the publishers.

As the day wore on the key man sitting out there over the sepulchre "broke in" on the wire to tell them what was going on. Two special editions were printed late yesterday by The Evening News, prior to the sad announcement that all 47 men had been found dead by 9 p. m.

One must marvel at the speedy transmission of news where International News Service correspondents reach out and establish their headquarters, the consistency of their reports and the policy of "get it first, but first get it right." The rescuers' work in getting to the bodies as early as they did seems almost miraculous even to those experienced in mining.

How those hardy men, fighting like tigers, blasted and pounded and shoveled and drilled their way through the rock and earth nearly 4000 feet below the surface of the earth cannot be comprehended by those who have not been there. No money could pay those men for what they did, according to their own statements. And yet no money could keep them from doing it again!

The Salvation Army is preparing for a drive in Glendale. Of all, it is one of the most worthy causes in the world today.

Glancing at the recent issue of their "War Cry," it was noted that the Salvation Army had their workers at Jackson, comforting and caring for the families of the entombed victims. Their need will be the greater now.

Everywhere you go you see the Army lasses reaching out into the streets for those forlorn and forgotten by the rest of the world. Truly, the Salvation Army is the one real rescue crew of civilization.

School is under way now both in the graded and high schools here.

The children get back to their studies without much ado, to be sure, but there is presented by the record enrollment the eternal problem of providing for them. Each year finds the schools insufficient. It is always so.

Which causes the question, "Did you ever try to fill a bottomless barrel?"

Appropos this subject, the San Francisco Journal says:

The old boogy of the birth rate continues to frighten France. The statisticians are again displaying figures to show that while the birth rate of France is falling that of Germany is rising, and they figure that unless some change of conditions can be brought about in less than fifty years Germany will have 93,000,000 population while France will have only 45,000,000. To the terror-stricken French this means another war in which they will be doomed to defeat. What can they do about it? That is the question which is agitating the minds of Poincare and Anatole France.

To the demand for more babies some reformer rejoins that it is not more babies, but better ones that any nation needs. There is something in that, but evidently France needs both remedies at once. The protection of numbers is important only in case military continues to live. Little Belgium has always been the most prosperous country in Europe on a per capita basis. She entered into no rivalry for power, but used the resources which she possessed. Probably that is what France will have to do, because such a large factor as the national birthrate could scarcely be speeded up enough to overtake Germany.

It is a condition worthy of notice that the two leading cities of California have a similar question for discussion. The statistics of the state school department show that the schools of Los Angeles are outstripping those of San Francisco at an alarming rate that is not justified by the difference in population alone.

A study of the two cities leads to the conclusion that San Francisco is drifting toward celibacy, or at least toward small families, while conditions at Los Angeles are more kindly toward the maintenance of homes. An index of this is revealed in the predominance of apartment houses in San Francisco while the bungalow flourishes in Los Angeles. Children are not welcome in the cooped-up apartment houses and where they are not welcome they generally do not come. In the long run, and not so very long at that, this state of affairs will bring about the same disparity that exists now between France and Germany. This is a social malady easy to talk about but hard to cure. It takes more than altruism to adjust the birthrate. The most helpful thing would be to make family life less expensive.

TAKES DEATH AS SUNDAY SUBJECT

'This Old World Is a Vale of Tears,' Says the Rev. W. E. Edmonds

"How to Raise the Dead," was the topic of the sermon Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church.

The text was: "And ye hath quickened who were dead in trespasses and sin."

"When a man is dead, all he needs is life!" exclaimed Rev. W. E. Edmonds. "Life is the opposite of death. How we all shrink from the word, the fact, 'dead.' It is a strong figure that Paul uses here—'dead in trespasses and sin.' All about us are people clothed and going about dead. For the believer in Christ there is no such thing."

"This old world is a vale of tears. Souls are going out of it all the time. Those miners up at Jackson this morning are frenzied workers trying to save life. Is there anything like that in the church of Christ trying to reach dead men? What shall be said of the saved man of woman who has no care for the dead souls? plead with you have some interest in those dead."

"The great truth is: 'Ye must be born again.' No man has a right to stand here who does not believe this. The only thing by which work can be gauged is: Are souls being saved? There have been drops of mercy, but oh for the flood-tide!"

Take Definite Goal
"All you, who hold office, why do you hold that position? Between now and the time of going into the new church every one of you should take a definite goal of soul-saving. If we take a definite responsibility, God will do His part. I am trying to awaken you to the awful fact that men are dying. You say: 'I live a quiet life.' It won't be quiet if you sense the lost."

"There is a price to be paid, for anybody can simply drift with the stream. There must be a holy character. It is great to read the Christian biographies and get tuned up. It stirs one's blood to read of those who dared and did: John Knox, who prayed 'Give me Scotland or I die.' Luther in the old Warburg castle, Bunyan in his prison, Moody, who said, 'There shall be one so given over to God that God can show what He can do with a surrendered life.' These had the passion to win souls that are dead. Men and women, will you stand with me in a program for those who are dead?"

DR. WINNARD IN SCRIPTURE TALK

Says There Is Message for Every Individual; God Looking for Trust

At the Tropic Presbyterian church Sunday morning, Dr. Winnard spoke on the subject of Individual Responsibility.

"The Scripture means little to us if it is not a message to the individual and it profits less to us except there is an individual application of its teachings," he said. "In answer to the oft asked question, 'How much depends on the individual?' It is no exaggeration to say that everything depends on the individual. As Atlas of old knelt with the world on his shoulders so the individual Christian of today should kneel before his Maker with the burden of the world upon him and pray as though everything depended on God and then, rising from his knees go to work as though everything depended upon himself."

"The whole church is no greater or stronger than the sum of its individual parts, and individual interest or individual indifference is largely responsible for the success or failure of the organization. Especially is this true when one accepts a position of special responsibility. Church officers, heads of departments, committees—all these occupy positions of great responsibility between the organization they represent and the work that is to be done. And it would be far more honorable to decline the position than to accept the responsibility and to neglect to perform its duties."

"God is looking for someone he can trust. Can he trust you? Or has the work left in your hands been neglected while you have been busy here and there or else merely marked time in your pretense of doing something, but getting nowhere."

"As members of this church you are responsible for its peace, its purity, its prosperity and its progress, for its spiritual and its temporal development. For has not God said, 'Them that honor me will honor' and 'seek ye first the kingdom.' If we despise His teachings, surely we may expect to be lightly esteemed."

"We of this church are responsible for its fullness and for its emptiness, for its helpfulness or for its uselessness, for its interest and for its indifference, for its sanctification and for its sins, for its song, and for its silence."

Fewer Births, More Deaths In Chicago

CHICAGO.—The birth rate in Chicago is declining and the death rate is increasing. Figures compiled by the vital statistics bureau here show that during the first eight months of 1922 births decreased 611, while deaths increased 511.

NO MORE GAS in Stomach & Bowels

If you wish to be permanently relieved of gas in the stomach and bowels, take Baalmann's Gas Tablets.

Baalmann's Gas Tablets are prepared distinctly for stomach gas, and for all the bad effects coming from gas pressure.

That empty, gnawing feeling at the pit of your stomach disappears, that anxious, nervous feeling with heart palpitation will vanish, and you will again be able to take a deep breath, often prevented by gas pressing against your heart and lungs.

Your limbs, arms and fingers won't feel cold and go to sleep because Baalmann's Gas Tablets prevent gas interfering with the circulation; drowsiness, sleepy feeling after dinner will be replaced by a desire for some form of entertainment. Your distended stomach will reduce because gas will not form after using Baalmann's Gas Tablets.

The Riddle of the Frozen Flame

By M. E. & T. W. HANSEW
Copyright, 1920, by Doubleday, Page & Company.

He was up the rough steps like a shot, forgetful of the fact that the door might be closed, there might also be others strolling along in that secluded spot. Cleek came up now, behind him, and with a caution of silence, he pressed himself upon the step below, and pressed his shoulder up against the heavy door. He pushed and shoved with all his might, while Dollops aided with every ounce of strength in his young body.

The door responded not one whit. Black Whiskers had done his work well and thoroughly, possibly as an object-lesson to the absent Jenkins. And Jenkins, by the way, was the name of Cleek's new-found friend of the factory. H'm. That was cause for thought. Then Jenkins was more "in the know" than he had given him credit for. Possibly Black Whiskers knew already of their conversation at dinner time. He'd have to close down on that source of information, at any rate—if they ever got out of this business alive.

These thoughts passed through Cleek's brain even while his shoulders and his strength were at work upon the unresponsive door. Only failure marked their efforts. At last, breathless and exhausted from the strain, Cleek descended the steps again. He listened, and hearing nothing, signalled Dollops to follow him.

"They must have got in somewhere, and here's hoping it was not through this trap door," he said evenly. "We'll see about it, anyway. Unless they were as careful with the door as the other end. It's a sporting chance, Dollops, my lad, and we've got to take it. I'll use my torch unless we hear anything. Then we'll have to trust to luck. Heaven alone knows how far this blessed affair runs on. We'll reach London soon, if we go on like this!"

"Yus, and find ourselves in Mr. Barker's office, a-burrowin' under 'is 'lighthouse' desk!" finished Dollops, with a little giggle of amusement. "And 'e wouldn't 'art be astonished, would 'e, sir?"

"Crums! but the chaps wot made this bloomin' tube did their job fair, didn't they? It goes on forever. . . . Whew! I'm winded already."

"Then what you'll be by the end of this affair, goodness knows, my lad!" responded Cleek, over his shoulder. He was pressing on, hugging the wall, his eyes peering into the gloom ahead. "It seems to be continuing for some time. Hello! here's a turning, and the question is, shall we go straight on, or turn?"

"Seems as if them two blighters came round a turnin', judgin' from the nearness of their voices, sir," said Dollops, with entire sense.

Cleek nodded. "You're right. . . . More sacks. If I wasn't so anxious to get out of this place so that you shouldn't be late for your 'appointment' with our friend Black Whiskers, I'd chance my luck and have a look what was in 'em. But there's no time now. We don't know how long this peculiar journey of ours is going to last."

They pressed on steadily along the rough, rudely made floor, on and on and on, the little torch showing always the few feet in front of them, to safeguard them against any pitfalls that might be laid for the unwary traveler. It seemed hours that they walked thus, and their wonder at the elaborateness of this extraordinary tunnel system grew. There were turnings every now and again, passageways branching off from the main one into other patches of unbroken gloom. And it was a ticklish job at best. At any moment someone might round them, and then—the game would be up with a vengeance. At Dollops' suggestion they followed always the turnings upon the right.

"Always keep to the right, sir, and you'll never go far wrong—that's what they teaches you in Lunnnon. An' that's what I always follows. It's no use gittin' lost. So best make a set rule and follow it."

"Well, at any rate there's no harm in doing so," responded Cleek a little glumly. "We don't know the way out and we might as well try one plan as another. Seems pretty well closed up for the night, doesn't it? It certainly is a passage and if the door at the other end is impassable after all this wandering, I'll, I'll—I don't know."

"Can't do no good by worritin', sir. Just 'ave to carry on—that's all we kin do," responded Dollops, with some effort at comfort.

"There's summin' in front of us now. Looks like the end of the linkin' cage, don't it? Better investigate afore we 'it too hard, sir."

Cleek stepped cautiously forward into the gloom, lighting it up as he progressed, the rays of his tiny torch always some five feet ahead of him. And the end it proved to be, in every sense of the word. For here, leading upward as the other had done, was a similar little flight of clay-hewn steps, while at the top of them—Cleek gave a long sigh of relief—showed a square of indigo, a couple of stars and—escape at last.

"Thank God!" murmured Cleek, as they mounted the rough steps and came out into the open air, with the free sky above them and the fine wind blowing that soon dispelled the effects of their underground journey. "God! it's good to smell the fresh air again—eh, Dollops? Where on earth are we? I say—look over there, will you?"

Dollops looked; then gasped in wonder, astonishment, and considerable awe.

"The Flames, guv'nor—the blinkin' Frozen Flames!" Cleek laughed.

"Yes. The Flames all right, Dollops. And nearer than we've seen 'em, too! We must be right in the middle of the Fens, from the appearance of those lights, so all told, we've done a mile or more underground, which isn't so bad, my lad, when you come to look at the time."

He brought out his watch and surveyed it in the moonlight. "H'm. Ten past eleven. You'll have to look sharp, boy, if you're to get to the docks by twelve. We've a good four miles' walk ahead of us, and—what was that?"

"That" was the sound of a man's feet coming swiftly toward them; they had one second to act, and flight over this marshy ground, filled with pit holes as it was, was impossible. No; the best plan was to stay where they were and chance it.

"Talk, boy—talk," whispered Cleek, and began a hasty conversation in a high-pitched, cockney voice, to which Dollops bravely made answer in the best tone he could muster under the circumstances.

Then a voice snapped out at them across the small distance that separated them from the unseen stranger, and they stiffened instinctively.

STORAGE BATTERIES

Continuing our discussion commenced in the preceding article on the above subject, wherein the construction of battery plates was described, we now come to the action of a charge or discharge upon the plates.

After the initial charge is cut off, assuming it is fully charged, if the cell is connected in a circuit, current will flow in an opposite direction to that by which it was charged. The cell, upon completion of a full charge, should show a voltage on open circuit of approximately 2.2 volts. This, however, will quickly drop to about 2 volts. As the battery is discharged the voltage will gradually fall off. The discharge should never be carried below 1.75 volts.

The container of a lead cell must be of a material sulphuric acid will not attack, and is generally composed of either hard rubber or glass, the former for portable and the latter for stationary batteries.

The negative plates will appear gray and the positive reddish in color. There are innumerable types of lead batteries, and each manufacturer carefully enumerates upon the name plate the rate, in amperes, of the rate of charge and discharge. This is necessary as he is the only one who knows the size, weight and number of plates in the cell, upon which the discharge and charging rate is based, and the life and general efficiency of the battery is greatly decreased if this rate is strictly adhered to.

There is a chemical action between the lead and the electrolyte, which forms lead sulphate during the course of the discharge. This uses up the acid, and the density of the electrolyte grows less. The results in the formation of lead sulphate, whitish gray in appearance (when dry), which is dissolved in the solution.

AMPLIFYING TRANSFORMER

In order to get the maximum of results from vacuum tubes as amplifiers they must be used with correctly designed amplifying transformers. When the tubes were first used as receiving equipment difficulty was found in obtaining a transformer with suitable values. This condition is now a thing of the past.

The cut shown herein depicts a very desirable transformer. The primary receives the maximum amount of energy and delivers it undisturbed in wave form and at the correct potential to the grid of the amplifying tube.

As will be seen from the cut, it is easily mounted upon a panel.

"Suah. Ah does, ma'am," replied Roxie, puffing away contentedly. "But dat don't worry me none, honey. Bless yo' heart, when Ah enters de Kingdom of Hebbin Ah figgers on leavin' mah breath bein'."

MISERY LOVES COMPANY

A recruit, of the 135th Minnesota National Guard, despite his short experience, had thoroughly established his title to being the worst shot in the outfit, if not in the world. On the range one day he made clean misses on nine shots and nine times the flag waved viciously. The tenth shot was likewise a miss, and this time the disgusted marker in the trench waved his flag again and,

CONFUSED HER

Jim was much in love, but held back his proposal from sheer bashfulness. At last he decided to pop the question over the telephone.

"Mabel, I love you!" he gasped, his heart thumping. Will you marry me?"

There was a moment's hesitation before the answer came. "Of course I will, Arthur. Why didn't you come and ask me yourself?"

RAW, RAW, RAW!

All the other excuses had been tried and found wanting when suddenly the buck bethought himself of a new one. He went to the orderly room to try it out.

"Sarge," he complained to the topper, "I can't go on K. P. today. I got the itch."

"Itch, eh?" queried the three-stripes-plus-diamond. "All right, company clerk, scratch him out."

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND NEDDIE'S HIDING PLACE

Neddie Stubbail, the boy bear, came lumbering up to Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow one day.

"Uncle Wiggily," asked Neddie with a funny little wag of his stump of a tail which was about as large as your thumb; "Uncle Wiggily, do you know where there's a good place to hide?"

"My goodness, Neddie! Why do you want to hide?" asked the bunny gentleman in surprise, as he gave his pink nose a twinkle. "Don't tell me the Bob Cat or the Skillery Scallery Alligator is coming and that I've got to hide! Don't do it!"

"I won't," laughed the boy bear. "Nothing is coming that I know of, Uncle Wiggily."

"Then why did you want a place to hide?" asked the bunny. "Cause we're going to play hide and go seek pretty soon," explained Neddie, "and I'd like a good place to hide where Jackie Bow Wow couldn't find me. He's 'it,' you know."

"Hum! Now I understand!" laughed the bunny. "So you want me to find a good place for you to hide, do you?"

"If you please," spoke Neddie, politely. "I'd like to have you show me, in the woods, not too far off, a good hiding place."

"I'll do it," promised the bunny rabbit gentleman. "I've hopped through the woods, man and boy rabbit, for many years. I guess I know all the hiding places there are."

"I thought you would," laughed Neddie. So Uncle Wiggily and the boy bear started off through the woods together. The animal children would soon begin to play the game of hide-and-go-seek, and Neddie wanted to find, ahead of time, a good place where he could stay and run in "home" without being caught.

"Now here is a good place to hide," said Uncle Wiggily, as he led the boy bear down into a deep dark hollow, where many green ferns grew.

"I'm afraid this place is too big," said Neddie, looking around. "I'd rather have a smaller place for my hiding place, Uncle Wiggily."

"All right," agreed the bunny. "We'll go on a little further."

Soon they reached a cave between two rocks.

"Here is a good place to hide," said Uncle Wiggily. "I'm afraid this is too small," said Neddie. "I'm sorry to give you so much trouble, Uncle Wiggily, but—"

"Oh, no trouble at all! No trouble at all!" laughed the bunny gentleman. "We'll go on a bit farther. I know lots and lots of places to hide."

So they went on a little farther until they reached a hollow log, lying on its side in a slump of bushes.

"What do you think of this as a hiding place?" asked Uncle Wiggily, pointing one paw at the hollow log.

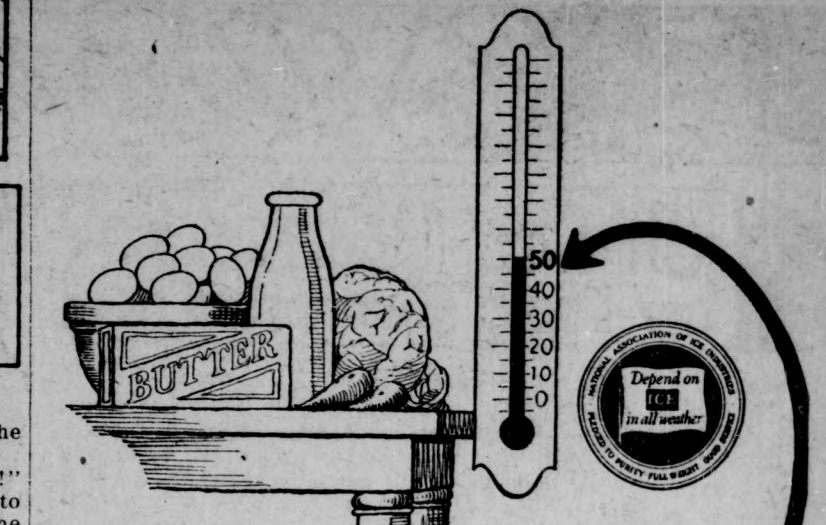

"Oh, this is neither too large nor too small, but just right!" laughed Neddie. "I'll hide here when we play the game."

"Well, then, I'll hop along and look for an adventure," said the bunny gentleman, as Neddie went back to the other animal boys and girls.

Soon the time came for playing the hide-and-go-seek game. Jackie Bow Wow had to close his eyes and count up to five hundred while the others ran off to hide. Neddie scurried for his hiding place.

"What do you think of this as a hiding place?" asked Uncle Wiggily, pointing one paw at the hollow log.

"Oh, this is neither too large nor too small, but just right!" laughed Neddie. "I'll hide here when we play the game."

It's A Fact

HEN BREAKS RECORD
The American hen has set a new record this year—perhaps we should say laid. Twenty-two billion eggs have been laid by her in 1922. The department of agriculture has kept count. The egg consumption of the United States is 1/2 egg a day for its 110,000,000 people. The increase of eggs is accounted for by decreased consumption of poultry, making prices for eggs comparatively low.

ON GUEST BOOKS

I want to tell you about a most interesting guest book which I saw the other day.

No, I don't wonder that you pass through a spasm of distaste at the sight of that phrase, guest book. I know just how you feel.

If there is anything in the world I hate it's a guest book in which you are expected to write not only your name but some touching or amusing sentiment.

There ought to be a law against them.

Never would I willingly go to a house if I knew that such a deadly contraption was hidden in mine hostess' desk.

Write Something Original But that is the worst of it, you never do know because it always is hidden until the time for your departure draws near. Then your hostess suddenly appears with it and says brightly: "Oh, I want you to write in my guest book. Write your name and then write something original."

You look around for something to crawl under, then seeing nothing that looks adequate you accept the pen she thrusts into your hand and look at the bright sayings that the other guests have produced, while you make your useless pretensions.

The bright sayings usually run something like this: "Oh, you clams."

"I'll tell the world Ada can spend more time dressing than any chicken in this state."

"A fine view, cordial hosts, and a wonderful dinner."

Some Idiotic Sentiment You get your hostess to translate the bright allusions and think thereby to distract her attention and keep her going until train time. But she has had that experience before, and you finally perpetrate some absolutely idiotic sentiment, the memory of which makes you turn cold when you wake up in the middle of the next night and remember that it is inscribed in that guest book under your name. I wonder if there have ever been cases where, what seemed some mysterious robbery was merely some guest returning to try and tear out the page on which he had inscribed himself an idiot.

And I wonder that murder has never been committed when some hostess trapped a man in this way. In such a case could it not be called self defense?

To return to the interesting guest book (and considering the fact that I've used up most of my space in ranting about its abominable relative, it's high time I did so), it was kept by an original friend of mine and was used to make guests happier, not to torture them.

A Pleasant Guest Book In it this hostess kept a record of all her guests' special preferences in the way of food and other comforts. Consequently the guest who never ate eggs in the morning was delighted the next time he came by having his preference remembered, and the guest who adored flapjacks was served them the next time he came, and the guest who preferred mayonnaise to French dressing found it ready for him.

Not an awful lot of trouble and a very gracious custom, don't you think?

Let's start an association to get a law passed that all the other kinds of guest books shall be thrown away and these substituted in their place.

Structural Steel Is Woman's Profession

Mrs. Jean Shassere

TERRE HAUTE, Ind.—Just naturally have a liking for anything that pertains to steel," explains Mrs. Jean Shassere as her reason for entering the steel bidding business.

Mrs. Shassere is the first woman known to engage in the line of structural steel bidding. She is the representative in Indiana and a part of Illinois for one of the largest structural steel concerns in the country and has been engaged in the work for six months. In that time she has landed contracts ranging from $25,000 down to $700 and $800.

"I didn't just plunge into it without any serious thought or study," said Mrs. Shassere. "After Dr. Philip Woodworth, president of the Rose Polytechnic Institute, had suggested to me that there was a great field for women in the steel business I thought about it for several months, consulted with him numerous times and finally got right down to hard study of the business. I dislike transacting business with men (contractors) who know nothing of steel. It is so easy to take advantage of them and they are not in a position to know whether one is playing square with them or not. That is my first business rule—a square deal and no favoritism."

Mrs. Shassere expects to bring out shortly a new patent device for a street car. Between times of bidding and working on her patent she devotes herself to her home and two fine children—a son and a daughter.

BAR FLAPPERS IN INDIANA SCHOOL

Can No Longer Flaunt Rouge and Modern Dress; New Edict of Board

GREENFIELD, Ind.—Hancock county, former home of James Whitcomb Riley, the famous "Hoosier Poet," has dealt a death blow to the flapper pedagogues.

The county board of education at a recent meeting went farther, and went on record as "opposed to ultra-stylish dress and the use of rouge by woman teachers, and of tobacco by men."

The edict of the board was contained in the following resolutions:

"Resolved: That we do not look with favor on the wearing of ultra-stylish dresses in the schoolroom by our teachers, and ask that they be rather conservative in their dress, use of rouge, etc., be it further

"Resolved: That we are absolutely opposed to the attendance at public dances by the teachers of Hancock county, and require that teachers abstain from such attendance, and other questionable social practices; be it further

"Resolved: That we are opposed to the appearance in the schoolroom of women teachers with bobbed hair, and require that, if any have been so unfortunate as to have had their hair bobbed, they shall devise some scheme to do their hair up with nets, or otherwise, while in the schoolroom."

The members of the friendship, social, program and publicity committees of the Business and Professional Women's club are to hold executive meetings tonight and make preliminary plans for entertaining the county federation of Business Women's club in October.

The county federation meets for a dinner once a month and the October meeting is to be held in Glendale, with the Glendale club members as hostesses, according to Dr. Laura Brown, president of the local organization. Following the committee meetings tonight the members of the club are to be entertained at a dancing party at the new office rooms of Dr. Maybelle Tanker, 107 1/2 South Brand boulevard.

Practical Housekeeping by Florence Austin Chase

KITCHENETTE COOKING FOR BUSINESS WOMEN

Many a business woman today has found comfort and happiness in a kitchenette apartment.

Woman is naturally a home-maker, and just because she has entered the business and professional world she need not be barred from home-making, even though it be two bare rooms to begin with. The business or professional woman, like everyone else, needs good nourishing food to do her work efficiently. She cannot be at her best when she must eat poorly cooked food and be lonesome in uncongenial surroundings.

In a modern kitchenette apartment the culinary apparatus is usually concealed in cupboards and behind wooden panels. The gas stove is quite pretentious; there are a sink, a pantry and even an ice box accessible. But the rents are usually more than one woman can afford. In such event the next best thing is two sunny rooms in an old-fashioned house with accessible running water, furnishing them simply and for the purpose intended, duplicating the modern kitchenette apartment conveniences as far as possible without sacrificing the cozy appearance of the sitting-room.

An inexpensive box couch could be made to do double duty—lifting the top one could arrange a very convenient pantry. In one-half of it a one burner gas plate and necessary cooking utensils could be placed, while the other half could be used as a supply closet, taking care of all groceries, seasonings, etc., which should be stored in covered jars, plainly labeled so that they could be selected at a glance. On the inside of the cover a series of pockets could be arranged for cooking spoons, knives, forks, a can opener, bread and paring knives, and an egg beater, so that when the "pantry" was open they would be within reach.

Aluminum cooking utensils would be best, as aluminum transmits heat quickly, thereby saving considerable time in the preparation of a meal. Although special articles in aluminum are rather expensive, in order to cook several foods at once on a one-burner stove adequate equipment is necessary, and I advise including several of these special dishes in the "pantry." Among them a small steamer, a triplicate utensil (consisting of three parts which fit together so that they just cover the burner), a double boiler with a wide heating surface, a small tea kettle with double omelet pan, six custard cups and a griddle. In addition there should be a pint saucepan, a bread box, a bread board, two pint bowls, two enamel plates, a tin measuring cup and one of glass, a small strainer, a puree sieve, a pint pitcher, an egg beater, cooking spoons, knives and forks, two small dish pans and a dish scraper.

An inexpensive card table could hold the gas stove when in use and to act as a kitchen table when preparing and clearing away meals. When in use it could be covered with white oilcloth; the rest of the time it could be folded and put behind a door. A bookcase could act as a china closet, being stocked with dishes, silver and glass for four people. A long table would look out of place in the living room and as such table usually holds magazines and books, and it is not desired to clear it for solitary meals, purchase a low wicker tea cart. The food could be placed upon it and waited for at a favorite chair; place salad and dessert courses on shelf beneath ready to replace the soiled dishes of the preceding course. Paper doilies, napkins and towels are cheaper than laundry bills and will meet the everyday needs quite as well as linen.

an understanding of American ideals while he ministered to their babies, had fewer and fewer hours of leisure for Nancy, but he unselfishly urged her to amuse herself with her old friends. Thus she met Forrester Stone, the financier, and yielded to the old lure of conquest. It was not until the caught a glimpse of what life meant to David or what it may mean to anyone who follows a splendid vision that she realized the fullness of her love for him. "The Flash of Gold" is Mr. Bellamy's first novel since "The Balance," which lifted him into literary prominence several years ago.

Meredith Nicholson, whose new novel, "Broken Barriers" is to be published by Charles Scribner's Sons on September 22, discounts the suggestion that a romantic revival in fiction is impending. "The time is ripe," he declares, "for novels of real American life, with all its complexities, its changing problems, its need at the present moment for some powerful influence to combat the curse of materialism, which is bound to break us unless we have a care. There have been, of late, encouraging signs that American writers are awake to the importance of dealing with things as they are. There is, of course, squealing from the benches of those who prefer to walk in darkness, fancying that they are enveloped in sunlight."

Wyoming Paid Huge Filing Fee, Report

CHEYENNE, Wyo.—The largest filing fee for incorporation articles ever paid in Wyoming was received at the office of the Secretary of State when the Mammoth Oil company of Delaware, accompanied its articles with a check for $40,105.

The Mammoth Oil company, a Sinclair estate, is capitalized at $200,500,000, and will develop the famous Teapot Dome naval reserve, recently leased by the government to the Sinclair interests. There are 9000 acres in the Teapot Dome, practically all proved oil ground, and its value has been placed as high as $500,000,000. Development work in the Teapot Dome is expected to begin soon.

The comptroller of the currency reports that national banks are "in a strengthened position and abundantly able, in fact, are in a better position to take care of the requirements of commerce and industry made upon them than they have been at any time since the signing of the armistice."

The people trust the banks, and the banks trust the people. This has much to do with the flourishing condition of banking institutions and reflects, furthermore, the strong elements of prosperity throughout the country.

Stupendous growth in resources of national banks and of their deposits and loans and discounts is shown by an analysis of official reports at the time of the last call, last June 30. Resources of the national banks of the country have reached the enormous total of almost $21,000,000,000, and increase of $629,000,000 over the call of May 5. Total deposits in national banks on June 30 were more than $13,000,000,000, an increase since May of $554,000,000, and a gain over June 30, one year ago, of $1,178,000,000.

PAU, France—Jean Brousset had a temper. He paid for it.

It was his wedding night, when a youth of the Basque country is supposed to stand for jests and tormentings that might draw daggers at any other time.

But Jean Brousset had a temper. When merry-makers assembled under his window he grew angry. When they stayed there, jesting, he grew angrier.

Finally some bold spirit mentioned that the new Mrs. Brousset was a widow and no longer young. It was true. She was 43.

Jean got his rifle and fired into the crowd, killing one and wounding a second. Then, as his temper faded into dismay, he turned the gun on himself and pulled the trigger.

Broken-Hearted Mother—Your problem is so personal I cannot do justice to it by a reply through the column, except to say that it seems both of you are somewhat at fault. Many a boy, and girl, too, has done much more for his or her family than this boy has, because of their love in doing it; so your boy has not done more than he should under the circumstances. If you can get along without his help, I should leave him to his conscience and not try the call of May 5. Total deposits in national banks on June 30 were more than $13,000,000,000, an increase since May of $554,000,000, and a gain over June 30, one year ago, of $1,178,000,000.

their color. Possibly your scalp is in need of a tonic even though you are in good health.

Worried—When hair grows out of the natural line it will often drop out if you brush it back into the head of hair. You might try this instead of encouraging it out of line as you have been through the way you have been wearing it. The bleach had nothing to do with it.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor. Protected by George Matthew Adams.

FULFILLING PROMISES BY PERFORMANCE.

Promises may get friends, but it is performance that must keep them. —Fellham

The test of business vitality is in performance, not in promises. If this were not so, anyone could attain success without effort, simply by setting up an imposing sign or publishing impressive promises of fair dealing.

But few succeed, while many fail. The law is "give and take," and those who chiefly take, without giving "value received," never attain the heights.

Because its promises have been conscientiously and consistently carried out in performance, the L. G. Scovern Co. has succeeded.

Diet and Health By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D. Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

THE ATONIC ABDOMINAL WALL—NO. 2

My article yesterday showed that even under certain forms of strenuous exercise there is need of special exercises for the abdominal muscles. If these coal miners needed these special exercises how much more do you need them? Especially do you need them if you have borne children and have a relaxed abdominal wall from that, and especially do you need them if you are a man past 30 years.

If you are a man, did you know fully "adjusted" so it can release that impulse. For all of these exercises you should begin with a small number, say not more than five, and gradually increase until you can do them up to 25 to 50 to 100 times every day.

Rest a few moments as soon as you are tired. This is highly important. You probably will be lame from them a while anyway, but if you don't carry out my directions for increasing them gradually and resting, you will be so that your waist measure should be smaller in proportion to your chest than a woman's? How many men do you see with a small waistline? After full adult age, too many of us still continue to eat the same as we did when we were growing and needed the food for our growth and youthful activities. The result is that the excess food is stored away as fat tissues.

So many disorders can arise from relaxed abdominal walls, because the abdominal walls have so much to do with holding the internal organs in place, that I am going to give you some special exercises for these muscles, with illustrations.

All girls—prospective mothers—should do exercises to keep the abdominal muscles firm and in good condition. A large part of the pain of childbirth can be avoided by having good muscular power in the abdominal muscles.

If you will do these exercises I give you, they will not only strengthen your abdominal muscles and prevent the accumulation of fat in that region, but they will also keep your spine flexible and lame that you will want to annihilate me. Remember that I have advised, if you have any reason to suspect that you should not do active exercise, that you see your physician first. If you are very much overweight, it is well to reduce by your diet first.

Exercise 1—Putting some newspapers or a sheet on the floor, lie flat on your back, hands at your sides; rise to a sitting position, and then forward until your nose touches your toes, if you can. You may not be able to do this at first without the use of your hands, but later you can.

Exercise 2—Same position as Exercise 1. Raise your right leg as far as you can, then your left leg, then both together.

Exercise 3—Drawing your knees up, put your hands on them and rock back and forth as far as you can.

Exercise 4—This is good for fat hips and abdomen. Assume position as in the first exercise. Roll over on your abdomen, first on the right side, then on the left. Remember my cautions.

REAL THRILL FOR BALL FANS NEXT SUNDAY, CLAIM

Merchants Play Cal-Pa-Co Paints Squad; Has Good Record in L. A.

The Glendale Merchants are looking forward to a real struggle next Sunday when they will play the Cal-Pa-Co Paints, according to Manager John A. Cobb.

The Cal-Pa-Co Paints are the champions of the Los Angeles Industrial league, and have a lot of other claims that might be seriously contested.

Last Sunday the Paints just walked away with the Standard Oils at Huntington Beach. When the game was over and the smoke cleared it was found that the final result stood 11 to 2 favoring the Paints.

The Paints have Elmer Hanson, former Seal twirler, in the box for them. Hanson is said to have been doing some clever work for the Paints.

Looking Forward to Game
However, with all of the advance notice of the pending struggle, the Merchants are looking forward with eager anticipation to next Sunday's game.

If "Eggy" Agoston, the Glendale Merchants' hurler, pitches the same game next Sunday that he did with the Pirrone Colts, there is a chance that the local boys may make that victorious game to Oatman, Kingman and Needles, Ariz.

"The next few games will tell," said Manager Cobb this morning. "The thing the fans can do to help is to fill the ball grounds at Park avenue and San Fernando road with enthusiastic local boosters. The boys of the team will do the rest."

PREP STARS WILL SEEK PLACES ON TROJAN SQUAD

Frosh Football Material of U. of S. C. Will Provide Good Team, Belief

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 19.—Spilling the beans, letting the cat out of the bag, and revealing to the public gaze in general "Gloomy Gus" Henderson's secret enterprises, Harold Hess, the new University of Southern California freshman coach has endeavored himself to followers of the gridiron by disclosing the composition of that unknown quantity, the frosh football machine. Needless to say, Head Coach Elmer C. Henderson was not among those present when this choice news tidbit was disseminated.

Some of the biggest prep men of the southland have signified their intention of enrolling at the "Trojan" institution, according to Hess, and the majority of them intend to make the freshman squad.

Arrive With Honors
The men whom Hess claims are all ready to put on the cardinal and gold and scrap for the Trojans include Johnny Loustalot, who won fame with San Bernardino last year; Stark, all-southern left end, who played for the Santa Ana team a year ago; Craig, from Long Beach; J. Ben Wolford, who hails from Alhambra; "Giant" Harry Hicks, famed as a basketball player and weight man; Carleton Rice of Seattle, a stranger to the south, but having all the earmarks of an experienced man.

Bert La Brucherie, formerly of Los Angeles high school, has signified his intention of trying for the position of half-back. Adams of San Diego, Shaw of Monrovia, La Ferve of Long Beach, Broadbelt of San Bernardino, Thomas of Owensmouth and Craig of Hollywood are also scheduled for half, according to Hess.

Bill Coville, formerly of Texas, and Hanford of Santa Monica, are out to grab the quarter position.

IN THE SPOTLIGHT OF SPORT

By WOOD COWAN

Out of the West, in 1912, came Joe Bush; and with him came speed to burn, for this youngster had a fast one that was the talk and fear of all batters.

Connie Mack got him for 800 bucks and it wasn't long before he proved his worth. In 1913 he won 13 games, lost 7 and pitched in 39 contests.

Five years later found him in a Boston uniform, and the following season his arm went blooie! That 1919 siege was Joe's nightmare for he pitched but nine innings in three games.

YANKS GAIN IN PENNANT BATTLE

Giants Also Advance in Flag Race, Taking Lead of Six Games

Both the Yanks and the Giants gained ground in the fight for the pennant yesterday. Today the Yanks are a game and a half ahead of the Browns, due to their victory in the final game of the series between the two teams. The Giants gained half a game on the Pirates when they defeated the Reds, while the Pittsburgh Pirates broke even with the Phils. The Giants now have a lead of six games.

Today the Yanks meet the Tigers while the Browns clash with the Senators. The Yanks have had a hard time beating the Tigers this season and if Cobb's men upset New York again while the Browns win, the Yank advantage will dwindle.

Best for Yanks
The Yanks, however, have the better of the fight now. The Browns must win two more than the Yanks in the remaining contests to get a tie in the present fight. The Yanks have ten games to play while the Browns have nine.

The Giants have thirteen more games to play. They can win the pennant by taking seven of them, no matter if the Pirates win their eleven remaining contests. The two teams clash at the Polo grounds tomorrow. Even if the Pirates win the three games they will not wrest the lead from the Giants. If the Giants should win only one of the three games, the Pirates' chances for the pennant are nil.

Tagging All Bases

Still wearing his white badge as a souvenir of the pop pottle thrown by a fan, Whitey Witt singled off Shocker in the ninth, scoring two runs, and the Yanks beat the Browns, 3 to 2, taking the lone end of the series. The Yanks are now a game and a half in front.

With a chance to gain on the Giants, the Pirates lost one of two games with the Phils over the left shoulder, being beaten by Steinhart in the second, 5 to 2.

The Tigers indulged in a sharp-shooting contest at the expense of three Washington pitchers and won 11 to 5.

The Giants took the final game from the Reds, 7 to 2, hitting all the offerings of the Red twirlers at will.

After beating the Cubs in five straight starts, Vance blew in the ninth with the game in his pocket and the Dodgers lost 4 to 3.

Say Leaning Tower May Fall to Earth

PISA.—After all these centuries, will the leaning tower of Pisa finally fall to the ground? A local geological expert says it is within the realm of possibility if an earthquake shifts the angle at which it leans.

Several earthquakes have been reported this summer in this section of Northern Italy, and the trembling of the earth's surface was felt at Pisa.

BROWNS PITCHING STAFF IS WEAK

Seems to Have But Small Chance to Carry On, Is Writers' Opinion

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Since now is the time and no other, for pitchers to come to the aid of the ball club we cannot bring ourselves to look with any degree of favor upon the chances of the St. Louis Browns to win the American league pennant. They get a distinct break on the schedule, drawing those seemingly ever-ready push-overs, Washington and Philadelphia, for a finish fight.

With the wire only nine games away, it is a noteworthy fact that the Browns' pitching staff is less likely to carry on now than at any time this season. It has been "jockeyed" to a standstill during the Yank series just concluded.

Ready to Go Fast
Were it not for the fact that, meantime, the Yanks are to be cast into the arena with the Tigers all would be serene for the Browns. The worthy Miller has a Shawkey, Bush and Mays going at top speed and they undoubtedly can carry the club through the ten games remaining.

But the Yanks always have some club whom they cannot beat with a horse whip and the Tigers are the 1922 nominee for this honor. To date they have beaten New York eleven times out of nineteen starts and there is no law that compels them to lose the impending series starting today. The Tigers are hunting third place money and Cobb never did waste much love on the Yanks, anyhow.

Lectures Tonight on Christian Science

Peter V. Ross, C. S. B., of San Francisco, is to give an address at 8 o'clock tonight at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, corner of Maryland and California avenues, on the subject, "Christian Science; the Divine Immanence." He will be introduced by Dale G. Vaughan, prominent member of the local church.

Mr. Ross, who is a member of the board of lecturership of the Mother Church in Boston, Mass., is widely known as an able speaker and a large crowd is anticipated to hear him tonight.

The Sport Crucible

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Ten tongues are still wagging dolefully today over the annual morsel of gossip concerning the inevitable retirement of Bill Johnston from the field of competitive effort. Johnston, they say, is through this time forever and always.

The same glad tidings were broadcast last year when the coast red head failed to go through the final round of the championship and yet he came back for another fling at the title this season. He had two legs on the championship bowl and a third would have given him the trophy outright; Johnston, therefore, hung on where another man in his position might quit.

It is an expensive proposition for him to go east year after year just to take a beating from Bill Tilden. That is about what it amounts to, for Johnston has not won the title since 1919 and judging the matter in the light of Saturday's developments, he will never win another as long as Tilden has no particular use for crutches.

Johnston's retirement, if true, will mean much to tennis the world over. In America it will leave Tilden without a serious rival. In Europe and the rest of the world, it will mean that the Davis cup teams can be organized and sent here with some tangible hope of success.

The Australians alone spent $20,000 and sacrificed four months out of the year merely to act the part of good sports. Deep down in their hearts they knew that, barring miracles, they would be beaten for the cup but they spent the money and wasted the time in a sort of competitive martyrdom for the sport.

We are about to enter the open season when college newspaper correspondents regale us with all manner of startling assertions about the prowess of this and that player that has appeared on the field of preliminary practice. Among the first of these supermen heralded comes from an enthusiastic correspondent who tells of a high school lad who can hurl the forward pass with unerring aim for 100 yards. We pause to catch our breath. If football turned out to full fruition all the marvels discovered in the early days, we would be without any normal and ordinary players.

Of course, the average football fan will have to be in possession of better evidence than the mere belief that a football can be propelled 100 yards by a throw. As far as the annals of actual play are concerned, in the language of the farmer who saw his first giraffe, "There ain't no such animal."

"Brick" Muller of the University of California football team generally is conceded to be about the huskiest football hurler in the country. He doubtless has made a couple of fifty or sixty-yard passes during his career, but even his fondest admirer hardly would claim any more for him.

Certainly no one will contend that it is possible to do anything like with a football that can be done with a baseball, and yet the best throw made with the latter is 142 yards, 9 1/2 inches, made by Sheldon Lejeune of Cincinnati on October 12, 1918.

From the angle of kicking, Pat O'Dea, of Wisconsin, was rated among the lengthiest booters ever on the field, but the best drop kick of his we have on record is about 63 yards. There have been five punts recorded at 70 yards, and any man who can consistently send the ball away for fifty yards during a contest is rated as giving his team all the help that is expected of him in this connection.

Of course, everything has to be taken with a more or less grain of salt. Some folks have unique ideas as to the basis of their measurements. The fellow that includes the distance run after the ball is caught to the original throw is, of course, giving the thrower all the best of it, and yet we have known a few football followers who seemed to think it unnecessary to differentiate the manner in which the distance was gained, counting it all as coming from the throw. Thus, if the pass was thirty yards and the recipient ran twenty, straightway these persons gave it as a fifty-yard pass. Few see it in this light, and yet, it is through these peculiarities of calculation that many unheard of distances are arrived at. In the matter of the forward pass, the passer generally is given the best of it as only the expert eye is able to gauge the moment of catching without adding the ground run over.

It has just come to light that Clarence Pingston, when he won the national diving title at Coronado Tent City, Calif., last month competed under physical conditions that no other diving champion has ever done and he won the title. When competing, Pingston had severe abscesses in both ears and nose. He said nothing about it, but plugged his nose and ears with cotton. He won the title, but at the expense of his own physical welfare. He is now under the care of physicians and will probably not be able to dive again until next summer. His work in the championship was on a par with his diving at Antwerp when he won the world's title, but he was under a severe strain and actual physical torture when he captured his title at Coronado Tent City last month.

There are comparatively few men athletes who have won championships at other than the sport in which they specialize. Miss Mary K. Browne, some years ago, and still one of the greatest women tennis players of the country, a national champion single and doubles in 1912, 1913, 1914 and again doubles champion last year, has taken up golf and last week won her championship when she defeated Miss Doreen Kavanagh of the Coronado Country club for the California state title at the seventeenth hole, 3 and 1. Golf experts predict an equally brilliant future for Mary Browne on the golf links, as she achieved on the tennis courts.

The recent disqualification of George Von Elm, the Salt Lake golfer by the American Golf association for breach of the "amateur rule" brings to mind that various amateur governing bodies have different interpretations of what constitutes "an amateur." Only a few weeks ago in France, Guillemot, the French long distance champion, was suspended for two months for receiving excessive "expense" money. In this case Guillemot's club manager was to blame, but the athlete suffered. In England in the famous Henley regatta no man can row as an amateur who has been employed as "a mechanic, artisan, laborer or engaged in any menial duty." This latter interpretation

CINCINNATI, O.—Following weeks of agitation concerning the use of new asphalt streets in Cincinnati by heavy trucks it was discovered that a regulatory ordinance already existed. It was decided to put the forgotten law into practice at once. Meanwhile truck owners held a meeting and voluntarily agreed to divert heavy traffic over granite and cobblestone streets.

Schuyler and daughters, Lois and Edith, and son, Hoyt, Mrs. Cole and son and daughter, Woodruff and Phyllis, and Miss Clarice Hanson.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Lewis, 505 East Maple street, have been at Independence, Ore., for the last five weeks. The trip was made to look after some ranches which they have in that district. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis motored up with their two children, Mary and Jack, making the trip in five days. Mrs. Lewis and the children returned yesterday by boat from Portland. Mr. Lewis will return in several days.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Junior Bennett of 114 South Central avenue enjoyed visits last week with an old friend, William Wadsworth, character actor with the "Abraham Lincoln" company, which appeared in Los Angeles. This is Mr. Wadsworth's third year with the company. Mr. Wadsworth's home is in Pigeon Cove, Cape Ann, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Bennett complimented Mr. Wadsworth with a dinner party Friday night in Los Angeles and later attended the play.

The members of the Alpha chapter of the Delphian club will hold the last of the summer meetings on September 23 at the home of Mrs. Charles Marshall, 525 South Central avenue, from 1 o'clock until 5 o'clock. Mrs. E. D. Yard and Mrs. W. Nash will have charge of the program, which will be a general review on Egypt. Each member has been requested to come prepared with a question on Egypt. The topics for October will also be assigned at this meeting.

House was built by day labor, and the best artisans carefully placed together selected lumber to form this beautiful home. The inside is all cabinet work. Lighting fixtures are lovely—one in dining room costing nearly $150.00—all hand-made.
There is a large basement
containing the heating plant, etc. Gas wall radiators in each room and electric plugs conveniently placed. Closets and built-in conveniences everywhere. Lovely, vine-covered pergola leads from the house to the great, double garage with its 15-
foot solid cement entrance

New Scheme Tried to Aid Fine Paying

NEW YORK—Police Recorder Cheever, of West New York, N. J., introduced the novel scheme of allowing a prisoner, lacking full payment of his fine to work it out in employment outside the jail. The favor was conferred on Walter Palzo, of West New York, who was arrested for burning rubbish in a vacant lot contrary to a city ordinance.

Arrested Too Much; Can't Be Policeman

CINCINNATI, O.—Convicted four times on charges ranging from petit larceny to forgery, A. J. Widmeyer, twenty-four, saw no reason why he could not be a policeman. But the safety director had different ideas about the matter and, after looking at the applicant's picture and finger prints in the Bertillon room at the police headquarters, refused the would-be officer.

INTERESTING NEWS NOTES AND PERSONALS GATHERED IN SOUTHERN SECTION OF CITY

Various Beach Resorts Prove Great Lure to Many Residents

"Hallowe'en must be coming," remarked Mrs. C. L. Brinkman yesterday at 1510 South San Fernando road opening up a carton of yellow lanterns which is the first shipment of novelties to arrive for this occasion.

An up-to-the-minute upholstery department is to be added to the establishment at 1529 South San Fernando road owned by the Russell-Pierce Furniture company. As soon as the present sale is over and room is available, about 1000 square feet in the rear of the factory will be devoted to this new department. Several experienced upholsterers have been hired and it is anticipated by the management that they will have plenty to do. According to Ralph Pierce, the new department will be prepared not only to do upholstery repair work of all kinds, but to upholster new furniture made on the premises to designs submitted by the customer.

H. R. Owen, proprietor of the grocery store at 1502 South San Fernando road, spent Sunday at Ocean Park.

The transfer business has been entered by Auctioneer Jack Harrison of 1408 South San Fernando road. He now has one Ford truck and expects to add another soon.

The shoe repair shop of J. B. Murphy has been moved from 1430 to 1426 South San Fernando road.

Seaside Auto Camp was visited over the week-end by a party of folks from Southern Glendale and vicinity, consisting of James E. Daugherty and family of 756 South San Fernando road, C. M. Meach and family of 816 South Glendale avenue, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. McBurney of 1408 South San Fernando road and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Holmgren of Los Angeles.

Mrs. G. Wiley Cox of 1510 South San Fernando road is now en route East to take a position as department buyer for Macey's department store in New York city.

Sunland wasn't nearly so hot Sunday as might have been expected, according to Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Trowbridge of 4840 Williamson street, who spent the afternoon there in the shade. They were accompanied by A. E. Trowbridge of 204½ West Laurel street.

S. W. Brown, proprietor of the S. W. Brown Beverage company, of 463 West Los Feliz road, was in Monrovia yesterday on business.

Seaside Camp between Santa Monica and Topanga Canyon was visited over the week-end by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Malch of 414 Fernando court. They were accompanied by their three children, Joe, Jim and Robert. "When a person goes out on Saturday night," remarked Mr. Malch, "he can have more fun than when he goes out Sunday morning."

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Markland of 1519 South San Fernando road are having a fine time vacationing in Colorado to report. Mrs. Agatha LeCom would like to know when they are coming back so that she can arrange to take her vacation from Laura's Chocolate Shop.

The Triangle Garage at 1526 South San Fernando road was closed Sunday during the absence of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. McLean at Santa Monica. They report that "everybody and his brother" was there.

28 Wounds From Bullets Fail to Stop This Man

Twenty-eight bullet wounds, received in the late war, do not seem to be preventing W. J. Thomson, who arrived recently from England, from assisting his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Buttery, in the operation of the Gateway Lunch Room.

Mr. Thomson was given a distinguished service medal for his conduct as a marine at Zeebrugge. He was one of those who helped detract attention from naval operations by a land attack across the mole. Meanwhile, ships were being sunk to blockade the harbor.

A. F. Barrett of 319 El Bonito avenue has been suffering lately from lumbago. He is proprietor of the Triangle Filling Station at 1700 South San Fernando road.

Pre-war prices have arrived on aluminumware, according to J. H. Wilson, manager of the branch at 1738 South San Fernando road of the Wilson-Bell Hardware company. He called attention yesterday to a new line just received which he says compares very favorably both in prices and quality with any which may be bought in Los Angeles.

Business has been extra good at the Baldwin Shirt company, 1725 South Brand boulevard, according to its manager, George B. Karr. He attributes the reason to the fact that the vacation season is drawing to a close and men are beginning to "think about dolling up again."

The South Glendale Motor Service Garage at 1416 South San Fernando road was closed yesterday afternoon while J. N. Hall and H. F. Hall went to Venice to get cooled off.

Accounts of a most interesting trip abroad are being given by Miss Florence Yoch, who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Yoch of 128 West Chestnut street. Miss Yoch makes her home at Bungalow 2, St. Francis Court in Pasadena. Miss Yoch, who is a landscape architect, spent seven months abroad studying architecture and landscape gardening. For three months she studied in Italy and then continued her work in Spain, France and England, spending a month in each. She also visited Switzerland and Germany and had the interesting experience of witnessing the Passion Play at Oberammergau.

A bandage is now being worn about the head of Ralph Webster of 123-A North Everett street in his work around the grocery department of the Gateway Market. It is to remind him to be more careful next time he goes in bathing at Bimini. Sunday afternoon he dived off the side of the tank at the same time a man dived from the two-foot platform. They hit bottom together and Mr. Webster was taken to the Emergency hospital in Los Angeles to have a wound in his head stitched up.

B. A. Spaford of Annandale is taking an active interest in the grocery department of the Gateway Market during the illness of his partner, F. W. Franklin of 1822 Vassar street.

Hermosa Beach was visited Sunday by a party from 1255 South Glendale avenue consisting of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Reavis and sons, Walter and Robert, Mrs. A. M. Terrill and Mrs. Flora Newland. They report excellent bathing.

Short Items Regarding People and Business In Busy District

A 5000-mile motor trip from Chicago to Southern California brought Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Lambrecht and son, Gordon Lambrecht, to Glendale about noon yesterday. They are now visiting at 324 West Elk avenue with Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Goudie. The trip was quite pleasant, according to Mrs. Lambrecht. She remarked that the scenery along the Columbia river highway is the finest that she has ever seen anywhere. So far she is well pleased with California. About a month will be spent in this vicinity. Mrs. Lambrecht is anxious to visit Long Beach and Hollywood.

Who knows a good name for a gasoline filling station? W. E. Green is now in the market for a good name for his new filling station on the northeast corner of Los Feliz road and Central avenue. This is reported to be one of the most attractive service stations in Glendale. The building is in mission style and as soon as possible a lawn will be planted around it.

Long Beach was visited Sunday by members of the Bentley-Schoeneman Lumber company of 490 West Los Feliz road. The auto caravan consisted of John Bentley, Ray Bentley, George Bentley and Roger Bentley. They were accompanied by their families.

Mrs. A. E. Strong of Burbank has now joined Mrs. Elsa McClellan of Eagle Rock in the operation of the Elsa-Jane Realty company at 1701 South Brand boulevard. "Business is surely fine," remarked Mrs. McClellan yesterday afternoon. "We haven't a bit of complaint to make. In fact, it has been good all through the summer, but right now it is extra good. A lot of people seem to be coming in from the east."

"We went all over southern California Sunday trying to find a cool spot," remarked E. W. Dick yesterday at the Baldwin Shirt Company's factory at 1725 South Brand boulevard. He was accompanied by Mrs. Wilson. They found the road so congested that it took them about two hours to get from Sawtelle to the race track on the way back.

The Pacific ocean was full of bathers Sunday, according to the report of J. M. Wilson of the Wilson-Bell Hardware company, 1738 South San Fernando road. He was accompanied by Mrs. Wilson. They found the road so congested that it took them about two hours to get from Sawtelle to the race track on the way back.

The Big Tujunga river was visited over the week-end by a party from southern Glendale, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Brinkman of 1524 South San Fernando road and Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Murphy and children, Harry Evelyn and Dorothy of 1526 South San Fernando road. All went well until Mr. Murphy decided to drive his car across the river. The water proved to be deeper than it looked. The water was soon up nearly to the floor board. To make the matter worse, the water flowed up the exhaust pipe into the engine. Yes, he got out.

W. J. Franklin of 1822 Vassar street, who arrived recently from Boulder, Colo., now has charge of the Glendale Monument Works at 1727 South Brand boulevard during the absence of C. H. Ambrosch of 644 North Pacific avenue, who has made a trip to the quarries.

Mr. and Mrs. William Heal and baby, Gordon, of 3033 Carmel street, Los Angeles, motored to Santa Monica Sunday.

INVITE MOTHERS TO ATTEND MEET

Reading Circle Will Open Fall Activities Soon at Public Library

The session on Wednesday, September 27, will mark the fall's first meeting for the Mutual Benefit Reading Circle in the Juvenile room of the public library on East Harvard street. Most residents of Glendale are aware of the function and purposes of the Reading Circle, which was started by Mrs. Charles H. Toll of Glendale seven years ago as the educational department of the Parent-Teacher association, and which now enjoys the enviable distinction of being the modern mothers' reading circle of the United States.

Although its chief reason for existence is to train mothers for more efficient motherhood it offers another advantage in its social aspect, being the means of bringing together for a common purpose many mothers who would otherwise not have an opportunity of becoming acquainted with one another.

An invitation has been extended to all mothers in Glendale to join the circle at this time, and not only the mothers, but anyone interested in child welfare. The circle numbers among its members many aunts, sisters and grandmothers. This organization meets each Wednesday from 11 a. m. to 2 p. m. Tea is served free at the noon hour, each member bringing her own luncheon. Mrs. St. Clair Whytock, Glendale 2426-W, will give any additional information desired regarding membership, and the work the circle undertakes.

G. E. Weaver Goes to Kansas City Home

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Weaver left yesterday for their home in Kansas City, Mo., after having been guests since June of Mr. Weaver's brother, W. E. Pelley, of 2218 Sierra avenue. Mr. Weaver and Mr. Pelley had not seen each other for twenty-seven years before this visit. Mr. Weaver came to California to attend the Shriner's convention, later coming to Glendale and visiting here since that time.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Weaver have made many friends, as well as meeting a number of former eastern acquaintances, since coming here and are contemplating returning to Glendale in the spring. Mr. Pelley and Mr. Weaver, although bearing different names, are full brothers, the latter having been adopted by his grandmother when the mother died.

AUXILIARY WILL ASSIST G. A. R. CONTRACTOR HAS NEW DEPARTMENT

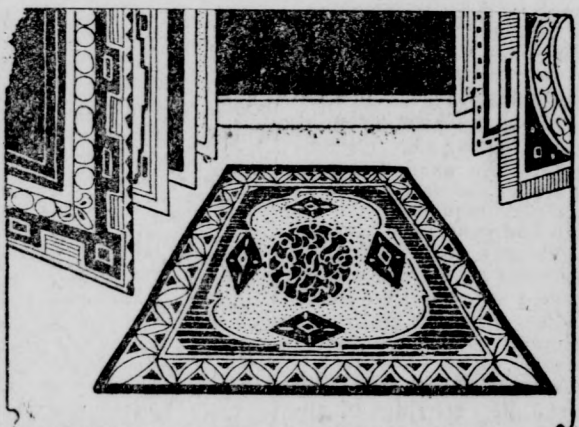

Hold Meeting Tonight; Give Outline of Work Now Being Undertaken

The regular meeting of Auxiliary No. 7 to N. P. Banks Camp No. 22, Sons of Veterans, which was recently organized with Mrs. Lula F. Paugh as president, will be held tonight in American Legion hall at 7:30 o'clock. The five chief purposes of the auxiliary are: To assist sons of veterans in their principles and objects; to aid members of the Grand Army of the Republic in caring for their helpless and disabled veterans; to extend aid and protection to their widows and orphans; to perpetuate the memory and history of the heroic dead and the proper observance of Memorial Day; to inculcate true patriotism and love of country, not only among the membership but all the people of this land and to spread and sustain the doctrine of equal rights, universal liberty and justice to all.

Those eligible to membership in this new auxiliary consists of mothers, wives and sisters of deceased or honorably discharged soldiers, sailors or marines who served in the Union army or navy during the Civil War of 1861-65; female lineal descendants not less than 16 years of age of soldiers, sailors or marines; wives of

A real estate, insurance and a rental department has just been announced by A. T. Gray, contractor and builder, with offices now at 209 West Broadway. The new department will be in charge of H. D. Motter, formerly of Los Angeles. Mr. Gray has built many beautiful homes in and around Glendale during the past year and a half. "Opportunity is still knocking," he said today, in commenting on his latest undertaking, "Subdividing will be a new feature with this organization in the near future." Mr. Motter also expresses his belief that there are still great things in store for Glendale. "Opportunity" is said to be the slogan of the new organization created by Mr. Gray.

sons of veterans in good standing; nieces of veterans; mothers of soldiers' sons or daughters; widows of sons of veterans who were in good standing at the time of their death. This new auxiliary will hold its meetings the first and third Tuesday night of each month at 7:30 o'clock in American Legion hall on East Broadway.

BACK FROM AUTO TRIP, 6000 MILES

Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Anderson Return From Midwest to Locate Here

Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Anderson former residents of 615 East Colorado street, arrived in Glendale yesterday from a five-months' motor trip to mid-western states and are temporarily located at the O. S. Palmer home at 1008 East Colorado street. The Andersons plan to buy another home in Glendale. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson left Glendale the first day of May and with their return yesterday they had traveled 6000 miles. Although they found bits of bad road and intense heat on the desert, nevertheless they had no car trouble and report a splendid trip. They traveled east by the Santa Fe trail, making the distance to Iowa in thirteen days. The return was by the Grand Canyon, Salida Canyon and Arrowhead trails and it took eleven and a half days to come from Keota, Iowa, to Glendale.

It had been three years since Mr. and Mrs. Anderson had visited their former home in Iowa, and they enjoyed visiting relatives and friends in Iowa, Illinois, Kansas, Wisconsin, Nebraska and Colorado.
